An Equal Favorite With Flip Flap, Who Has Poor Racing Luck, the Son of the Great Ormonde Leads After the First Sixteenth of a Mile and Equals Artful's Time of a Year Ago-Race Worth 688,680 to the Winner-Thirty Thousand Persons See the Big Two-Year-

Under a cloudless sky and a radiant sun tempered by gentle ocean breezes and over a track that had dried out with remarkable rapidity since the heavy rain of Friday. Ormondale, a magnificent son of the famous Ormonde, out of the noted mare Santa Bella, won a superb victory in the historic Futurity run at the Sheepshead Bay track yesterday afternoon.

BACE WORTH $42,680.

The race was worth $42,680 gross, of which Ormondale's share was $33,680. Hitherto a maiden, this colt went to the post keyed up to the proper pitch by Trainer Thomas Welsh, and though he went up a point in the betting he closed an equal favorite with J. A. Bennett's Flip Flap at 5 to 1.

Ormondale ran the six furlongs straight. away in 1:11 4-5, the time made by Artful, won the Futurity last year. From the first sixteenth pole he took up the running and led to the end, where under a mild drive he finished a length and a half before H. P. Whitney's Timber, by Ogden-Lola A. who ruled second in favor at 6 to 1. It was a sharp struggle for the place, but Hildebrand never let up in his efforts, with the result that Timber beat Fred Burlew's Belmere, another Ogden colt, out of Nahma. by a head.

Belmere, who was coupled in the betting at 20 to 1 wiith Bellsnicker by Mirthful-East with all possible speed to see the son of Ormonde run in the Futurity and win it.

WILD SCHAMBLE AT THE START.

There was a wild scramble, as every There was a wild scramble, as every horse in the race broke the moment the barrier went up, and Redfern, with his position on the outer side of the track, took no chances with the jam nearer the rail. On the contrary, he hustled Ormondale straight ahead, although he was not the leader until he had covered a sixteenth point Ormondale, under restraint, yet showing a royal turn of speed, still main-tained his slight advantage, with Redfern tained his slight advantage, with Redfern watching his nearest competitors with an eagle eye. Jacobite began to weaken under the strain and the pace and Timber became the runner up, with Belmere in third place, closely followed by Jacobite, Kuroki, Flip Flap, who was still shut off, and the rest trailing.

Redfern never made a mistake with Ormondale after that, for he kept clear of all entanglements, at the same time saving as much ground as possible, and when he reached the bend in the track just above the field stand, Ormondale for when he reached the bend in the track just above the field stand, Ormondale for the first time was picked out by the spectators who had glasses as the probable winner. It was a good length by which he led the big field into the straight run home. Hildebrand had also saved much ground with Timber and was ever near the inner rail, about to draw his whip. Then came Belmere, so close up that he looked dangerous, with Burns coming through with Flip Flap at a tremendous rate. Kuroki also seemed to be threatening, but the others were tailing off more and more as they progressed, so that a really thrilling finish was out of the question. An eighth of a mile from the wire the crowd took up the cry:

For barring accidents such seemed to rer parring accidents such seemed to be the case beyond a question of a doubt. Yet Redfern, realizing the magnitude of the triumph and profiting by an experience which has made him one of the best horsemen in America, took no chances. While it was possible for him to have drawn a fine finish, he preferred to clinch the receipt that there could be no possible. the race so that there could be no possible chance for a dispute when the wire was passed.

So, keeping Ormondale clear of his nearest rivals and shaking him up at the sixteenth pole for a final rush to victory, Redfern never turned around, but kept on in triumph to the end. And a regal triumph it was, too. For when Ormondale came home alone, followed by the struggling Timber, the game Belmere and the unlucky

resid Redfern to Andrew Miller and trainer
Welsh after the race, "and that was to wake him up at the start. After that Ormondale ran kindly and truly. He had a world of speed and could have run away from the field with consummate ease had I persisted him to do so. But under restraint to the residue of the residue of the residue of the restraint of the residue of the restraint of the residue of the restraint of mitted him to do so. But under restraint he held them all safe, although I rode him out at the end to make sure of the race." "After his work at Saratoga," remarked "After his work at Saratoga," remarked Welsh, "I felt sure that he would be the Futurity winner. He is one of the best youngsters I have ever trained and I believe he has a brilliant future. He pulled up perfectly sound and could have run the race right over again if it had been necessary. You can say that the mere fact that I have trained a Futurity winner has satisfied me beyond words. I am the hanolest man in the world."

There were no excuses for Timber, who happiest man in the world."

There were no excuses for Timber, who ran his race. He showed the form that made him conspicuous early in the season and was as fit as Rogers could get him. Belmere, who was turned over to Burlew by Madden at Saratoga, was fairly beaten after receiving a faultless ride from Buchanan. Burns said that Flip Flap was knocked back right after the start, and that she lost so much ground it was impossible to do any better with her. Kuroki's race was an improvement over anything he has to do any better with her. Kuroki's race was an improvement over anything he has done before, and a further improvement may be looked for. Trainer Jovner was inclined to blame the defeat of Woolwich upon the sendoff, but those at the start said that Mr. Belmont's colt got away as well as any, but was simply outrun and in the general scramble was pinched off so that he could never get up.

In addition to the $33,680 that went to the winner Timber's share was $3,083,33. the winner Timber's share was $3,083.33, while Belmere's share was $2,166.67. An additional $2,000 went to Mr. MacDonough for nominating the dam of the winner, while $1,750 went to Madden for nominating the dams of Timber and Belmere.

at his mercy. Opening at 7 to 5, he was pounded down to 9 to 10 favorite, his owner geing up and down the line placing a $10,000 commission.

Lady Amelia, with 123 pounds, was an added starter and so was Pasadena, but the former was passed up by the wise fraternity even at the liberal odds of 8 to 1. Graziello, who was in receipt of fifteen pounds from Roseben, was backed down to sixes, while H. P. Whitney's Prince Hamburg, was who in receipt of eleven pounds from Roseben, went up to eights.

The start was only fair, Lady Amelia, Prince Hamburg and Roseben getting away, with the others slow to begin. Roseben had the outside position and was several lengths behind Prince Hamburg, who was pressing Lady Amelia hotly in the run up the backstretch. Lady Amelia, with her usual early speed, continued her fast fight to the head of the stretch, where O'Neill went to work with Roseben in earnest. Hildebrand, however, had out Prince Hamburg loose, and as he rushed to the front after being straightened out he carried Lady Amelia and Roseben wide. Then he stood a long drive, and though he was being worn down at the end he won by a length in 1:14 1-5, with Roseben closing so fast at the end that he beat Lady Amelia a nose for the place.

Some persons were inclined to find fault with O'Neill's handling of Roseben, while others were satisfied with the explanation that he didn't relish the cuppy condition of the track. Coming to the water jump for the second time, Pagan Bey was the pacemaker, followed closely by Dick Roberts and Phantom. Rounding into the tackstretch for the last time Ray went to the front again with Phantom, never to be headed, the Meddler gelding winning easily by a length and a half from Dick Roberts, who was eight lengths if front of Pagan I'ey. The race was run in 4.13 2-5, the previous winners of the event being Article, Plato, Orman, Rising Sun, Adjidaumo and Caller.

likes soft going opened a 6 to 5 favorite in the fifth event, at a mile and a furiong, but he went up in the betting to 13 to 5 because of the heavy play on William Astor Chanler's Novena, who was backed down to 5 to 2. Lichtenstein bet $2,000 on Stroller, while Joe Rose and Eddie Burke led the plunge on Novena with Joe Hayman and Bob Tucker backing S. S. Brown's Ascot Belle at threes. Stroller went to the front as soon as the gate was sprung, and set a fast pace to the head of the stretch. There it was that Crimmins sneaked Lord Badge, 8 to 1, whrough on the rail, and as soon as the oil fellow was let down he fairly romped home a winner by half a dozen length and a half. Ascot Belle ran far below expectations and finished last.

For the last race, at a mile and a sixteenth on the turf, the smart operators could see nothing but First Mason, the biggest bet placed on this old horse being a $5,000 commission by Frank Tyler. First Mason was pounded down to 4 to 5, with J. A. Bennet's Pretension also in much demand at 13 to 5. Pretension went off in front as if it was all over, but he scon tired, and Grupple, a three-year-old colt by Woolsthorpe, at 40 to 1, took command at the head of the stretch, and though First Mason went after him like a whirlwind he was driven home a winner by a length and a half in 1:48 3-5. went after him like a winter he was driven home a winner by a length and a half in 1:48 3-5. First Mason had six lengths over Pretension. There was a rumor that the winner's victory might be protested on the ground that Edward Corrigan had an interest in him, but no such action was resorted to. Grapple ran in the name of P. H. Brines, with Green B. Merris his trainer, and it was rumored at the track that a number of horses formerly owned by Corrigan would run in future under the austrices of this contribution. the auspices of this combination.

Mason was possibly short of work.

PREVENTS SHERMAN FROM RE-CORDING DOUBLE EVENT.

Gets the Handleap-Norton Has Mixup With a Hobo-Will Anderson and Isaac Mackle Scoop Pot at Hollywood.

Tom Sherman was snuffed out in the final cound of the Deal Golf Club invitation tournsment yesterday by Jerome Travers, the defeat being by 2 and 1 after a splendidly played match. He won both score medal and president's cup last year, and, after winning the score medal this time, to gain the final was the next best thing to pulling off the double

As the morning matches were ending weary and dusty hobo, unkempt of beard and with a blossom nose, had the nerve to walk up on the clubhouse veranda and rub shoulders with the members before the score board. The servarits spotted him and called on Will Norton, the professional, to run out the intruder. Norton made a good try, in spite of a stiff fight put up by the hobo, and had his man pinned against the wall before making the discovery that the trainp was Samuel Allen of the greens committee in masquerade. There was an amateur circus going on near by, in which the Deal society folks did stunts for charity's sake, and Allen had come across lets to show his makeup.

The semi-final matches for the president's cup brought out a nineteen hole contest between Travers and William Frew, the seventeenth through laying a stymie. Playing out for their cards, Sherman shewed 42 and Peters a 38, making the totals respect Sherman is wonderfully long on the tee shots and on the first two holes in the final he had Travers playing the odd. After that the Nassau boy had the better of the drive and second shots, while he was also very steady in putting. "This is a different Traver from the morning" remarked Dr. John M. Byers of Dyker Meadow. "Then he seemed lead; now Travers is all quicksilver and nerve power."

lead; now Travets is all quicksilver and nerve power."

Sherman needed but one put on the first green, while 'Iravers took three of them, but he evened up the loss of first blood by winning the second hole, where Sherman did the triple putting act.

On the 'third 'Iravers popped his mashle shot into the bunker and Sherman won in 4. A beautifully played 5 gained Travers the fourth and after a half in 6 Travers became up by a 3 on the sixth. He added the next three to his roll the ninth, despite the only hooked drive made by Travers in the match, the strokes being 4, 3 and 5. This made the Nassau youngster 4 up and 41 at the turn to 45 for Sherman.

Travers played to carry the bunker from

Travers played to carry the bunker from the tenth, instead of using a cleek, asis usually done here, and, getting into the hazard through the rash proceeding, Sherman won in 4. A half followed in 4 and next, through an over put in trying for a 4, Sherman won the fwellth in 5 to 6.

an over put in trying for a 4, Sherman won the twelfth in 5 to 6.

'I wo down, with but six to play, Sherman made a Titanic effort to stem the tide flowing against him, the result being a finish in ideal golf. Both were on edge and playing with superb results and methods. They halved the thirteenth in 3, fourteenth in 5 and the 423 yard fifteenth in 4, Travers here having a ten foot try for a 3, while Sherman was on the edge of the green in 2. The sixteenth was a half in 5, Travers missing a short put, which made him dormie 2. They halved the seventeenth in 3 and, now a victor, Travers drove the 243 yard home hole and ended with another 3, for a 79 to 82. The card was:

Mountain Cup—Final round—George Worthington, Mount Anthony, beat F. H. Twyeffort, Dorset Field, 2 up and 1 to ply.

J. A. Jamison won three prizes yesterday at the Fox Hills Golf Club, Staten Island. His most important victory was earned in defeating B. T. Allen in the final round for the J. Elmer O'Donohuc cup. It was a close match, but Janin won by 2 up. In the Class A handicap Janin turned in the lowest scores, both gross and net, St. 5—7, 6, thus capturing that trophy. By that victory Janin won the largest number of points awarded for the club handicaps this month, and got the special monthly club prize. The leaders in the Class A and B handicaps are:

Class A—J. A. Janin, 81, 5—76; B. T. Allen, 84, Class A.-J. A. Janin, 81, 5.—76; B. T. Allen, 84, 5.—79; W. B. Haughton, 84, 4.—80; C. W. Sparks, 92, 9.—83; W. A. Hamilton, 98, 8.—85. Class B.-A. B. Gentiemen: Mr. A. M. Utterback of this place put his horse in my hands. He was very lame from a ruptured tendon close to his near front ankle, and I thought the horse worthless as, a race horse, but, as I knew he had lots of speed and dead game, I took charge of him and seeing your adv. I had Mr. Utterback send for a bottle, as you are aware, and it worked like amiracle. On the 21st of July when I got him he was a very lame horse and on the 9th of September we gave him Your heats all around 2:20 and the next day we are him five heats to 2:20 to 2:24/4, which was a sever e horse was. The ankle is enlarged some yet. Will it remain so? My idea in having Mr. Utterback send for the second bottle was to try to take the enlargement down and at the same time continue the treatment a little longer. Perhaps I used the remedy too liberally, but I thought if a little was good a good deal was better. Please answer, stating what you think of the case.

FLANAGAN'S BIG THROW.

Irishman Huris 56 Pounds 31 Feet 5 Inches From Stand at Pastime Games. The Pastime A. C. held its midsummer

track and field meet at its grounds, Nine-tieth street and the East River, yesterday, and there was a big crowd of spectators. The most remarkable event of the day was the throwing of the 56 pound weight from stand, which resulted in the establishment of a new world's record. John Flansgan of the Irish A. A. C. was the author of the feat, and he succeeded in hurling the big weight a distance of 31 feet 5 inches, which supplants the former mark of 29 feet 6½ inches by himself, at Madison Square Garden on March 12, 1904. Good as Flanagan's throw was it only secured him second place, as McDonald of the New West Side A. C. sent the missile 28 feet 11 inches, and with a handi-cap of 3 feet it netted him first prize. J. S. Mitchel of the New York A. C. figured on the scratch mark with Flanagan, with one hand flung the weight 28 feet 9 inches, which is a world's record for one hand throwing. The former figure at this style was 27 feet sinches, by Mitchel at the Canadian championships of 1889. John S. Burke, a burly policeman, threw the "56" 30 feet 6 inches at the police and firemen's sports about three weeks ago, but it was learned yesterday that the weight, besides two inches over the stipulated length, was a couple of pounds short of weight and the ground was downhill. There was an exciting tussle for the point

A small sized riot was created by the friends of H. M. Basson of the Young Men's League, who, a couple of hundred strong, marched around cheering and yelling and claiming that the runner won the three mile handicap. Basson himself stated that he ran a lap of the track more than was credited to him, and his friends thought the same. But the referee and officials were of a different opinion, and no heed was paid to the protest.

LIZANA WINS O'DONOHUE CUP. Defeats Vivian II. on Time Allowance in Gravesend Bay Regatta.

The larger boats of the Gravesend Bay Yachting Association assembled off the anchorage of the Bensonhurst Yacht Club at Ulmer Park yesterday afternoon to sail the second leg of the O'Donohue cup series. S. E. Vernon's Vivian II, was the first yacht to finish the thirteen mile course. On cor-rected time, however, the race went to the Lizana, owned by D. S. Wylie of the Atlantic Yacht Club. As the Lizana was also the winner of the first leg, sailed on July 4, the Sea Gate organization now becomes the custodian of the coveted trophy.

The race, which was open to Classes P and above, brought to the starting five yachts. All the boats sailed in one class under the usual time allowance. The race was to and around the Old Orchard

Shoal light and return, an aggregate distance Shoal light and return, an aggregate distance of thirteen nautical miles. The wind was northeast, giving the boats a run down the bay with all their light sails set. After rounding the leeward mark it was a dead beat home. The Bobtail was the first to cross the line, with Tobasco and Vivian II. close astern. In running before the wind Vivian II. gradually drew away from the other racers. Though she was the first to finish, by a good five minutes, she was unable to overcome the time allowance due Lizana. The summary

Here it was that society women, for the most part clad all in white and shading their complexions from the burning sun with dainty parasols, walked hither and thither, looking at this colt and that with critical eyes, and with an enthusiasm that showed a knowledge of things horsy to a remarkable degree.

Usually some particular horse in one of these big races is a greater magnet for public attention in the paddock than the others. But in this case it seemed as if every starter, no matter how insignificant his chances appeared to be, had his circle of loyal followers wherever he was saddled.

ORMONDALE REFLECTS CREDIT ON GREAT SIRE Ormondale was foaled in California. His ormondale was logied in California. His sire, the great Ormonde, was purchased about fifteen years ago by Mr. Mac Donough for $150,000. He had been previously sold by an English owner to Don Bocan, who took him to Buenos Ayres. Argentine Republic, and placed him in the stud. Charles Reed, who afterward bought St. Blaise Reed, who afterward bought St. Blaise for $100,000, decided to buy Ormonde and took a steamer for Buenos Ayresto complete the negotiations. In the meantime Mr. MacDonough made arrangements through Tattersalls of London for the purchase of the stallion, and when Mr. Reed arrived at Buenos Ayres he found that he had made his trip for nothing. Though Ormonde has been in the stud in this country for a number of years, his get have not amounted to much, so that Ormondale may be considered the first colt sired by this famous stallion who has won fame and fortune. Ormonde is by Bend Or, out of Lily Agnes, and his ancestors can be traced back to the never to be forgotten Eclipse.

When Trainer Weish started Ormondale for the first time in a stake race at Brighton Beach last month he said that he was pointing the colt for the Futurity. Upon that

BIG CROWD AT THE TRACK. There were seventeen starters. August Belmont's Bridgeman being the only withdrawal from the original list of entries, while the Milltown Stable's Athlete, with 117 pounds, was an added starter. Thirty thousand persons saw the big race and more than 300 bookmakers handled wagers than were made in the grandstand enclosure and in the field. The perfect weather, coupled with the fact that metropolitan racegoers had not seen the horses run for nearly a month, served to create unbounded enthusiasm. Furthermore, the fact that the Futurity was the most open race of its kind from a speculative standpoint that had ever been run at the Pay added to the general interest, and when Ormondale came home in majestic triumph there was a feeling of intense cafisfaction evident in every quarter. In automobiles and tally-hos the prosperous element came to the track in comfortable fashion, while the railroad trains from Long Island City and the trolley cars from the | ridge and other points were emptying thousands of turf enthusiasts at the track gates long before it was time to run the first race. So well informed are patrons of the turf to-day as to the form and condition of the horses that when it came time to dissect the Futurity a tour of the betting ring and the crowded stands disclosed a general preference for Ormondale, Flip Flap, Timber, Woolwich and Wernterg, although hundreds of speculators as usual were anxious to shoot at the moon, or in other words to lack whatever horse met their fancy in spite

to see the horses run. Over the green lawns swarmed regiment of men who seemed unable to stand in any one position before the racers appeared. This general nervousness seemed to pervade the gigantic throng from paddock to betting ring, where, as usual, the battle with the books made it an impossible task to move the elbows. One look at this jam of wild eyed speculators seemed to indicate that a world of money was being wagered on the race, but it is a matter of fact that. while the layers handled as many bets us they could conveniently take care of, the wagers were not of the usual large proportions, for the reason that the heavier speculators preferred to remain in their private boxes and reserved seats, where they could see the race in comfort, rather

August Belmont, Clarence H. Mackay. August Belmont, Clarence H. Mackay, Perry Belmont and men prominent in the affairs of the Jockey Club inspected Woolwich in the paddock. This colt was expected to run the race of his career, partly because the track was a bit soft. If it had been sloppy with mud the chances are that Woolwich would have been more heavily supported. H. P. Whitney sailed for Europe some time ago, so that Trainer John W. Rogers was the only representative of this famous stable to look after the final grooming of Timber. The Keenes, father and son, were on hand to see the two Japs, Oyama and Kuroki, saddled by Jimmy Rowe, but it was quite evident that neither looked for success.

Jack Bennett, the owner of Flip Flap, was one of the angriest men at the scene of action. It appears that some time ago P. J. Dwyer secured the services of Jockey P. J. Dwyer secured the services of Jockey Willie Knapp to ride Quorum in the big race. When Mr. Dwyer decided not to start Quorum it is said that he turned Knapp over to Jimmy Rowe. As Knapp had ridden Flip Flap in several of her best races, Bennett went to E. R. Bradley, who has a contract with the boy, and tried to get him for the mount. Bradley was willing, but at the last moment. Mr. Dwyer, it is stated, decided to start Albert F., which would tie Knapp down to his original engagement with him. Whatever was the inside of the argument matters not, but the fact remains that Knapp had the mount on Oyama while Bennett had to put Burss up on Flip Flap.

There was just one starter in the race that did not attract society, and that was Veronese, owned by Father Bill Daly. The Sage of Hartford bought this son of Henry of Navarre from Mr. Belmont as a yearling, and as the colt had run a number of good races of recent date, Daly actually believed that he had a chance to take down the rich prize. It mattered not to him whether the colt was saddled in a social atmosphere or not, for Father Bill races horses purely upon business principles, with sentiment completely out of the running.

Schulte's Zienap, a filly by Florist, who had scored a couple of victories at Latonia, were passed Zienan, a filly by Florist, who had scored a couple of victories at Latonia, were passed up without much delay. John E.Madden, who was not at the track, was well represented in the race, although for the first time in a number of years his colors were not seen. F. R. Hitchcock's Vendor, Fred Burlew's Bellsnicker and Belmere, Mr. Whitney's Timber and Mr. Chanler's Artery were all bred by Madden at Hamburg Place, while Sydney Paget's Jacobite and Newton Bennington's Jerry Wernberg first saw the light of day at the Haggin establishment. While the paddock preparations were reaching a climax the operations in the ring were fairly swamping the layers. Ninetyone members of the Metropolitan Turf Association held positions in the front line on equal terms with the ten outsiders, who, by the way, held the choice positions cirectly in front of the big jockey board, with 'lyler, the Humming Bird, at the head. Seventy-five layers were in the back line, while 130 pencilers chalked the odds in the field. Every bookmaker at the track paid $2 a race to John G. Cavanagh for "information," which turned over to him a revenue of $3,672. This arrangement, which was put into effect at Saratoga, will hold good on all the local tracks, and will materially aid the various racing associations in declaring fat dividends.

John W. Gates was credited with a wager on Ormondale that netted him $25.000. While on Ormondale that netted him $25.000. While the colt was liberally supported by the public, Mr. Gates's wager was about the only one of leviathan proportions which was made on the son of Ormonde. Joe Hayman and Kid Rogers between them placed $5,000 on Woolwich. Dave Johnson had a heavy wager on Timber, while Sol Lichtenstein took a chance on Athlete, who, by the way, is owned by a Massachusetts clergyman.

Brown's Accountant, by Filigrane-Reckon, with The dice box had drawn the rail position for Belmere, with his stable mate, Bellsnicker, next to him. Then across the track the positions were allotted to Timber, Woolwich, Accountant, Flip Flap, Jerry Wernberg, Athlete, Jacobite, Vendor, Running Water, Kuroki, Zienap, Veronese, Ormondele, Oyama and Artery on the extreme outside.

The start was so far away that only those with powerful glasses could see what was going on, and even then it was a difficult matter, because of the glare of the sun, to Timber was the quickest breaker, for that matter, but Ormondale outran him, and so did Jacobite. For at the first eighth pole Ormondale was leading by less than a length, with Jacobite in front of Timber, who was followed by Belmere, Kuroki, Vendor and Flip Flap, the latter being shut off.

The others were beaten at this early stage of the race beyond all hope, and the further they traveled the more ground they lost, until nobody paid attention to them.

Yet his victory, while meritorious and fairly and squarely won, cannot place him upon the pinnacle which other Futurity winners have reached. Some of the best two-year-old colts and fillies of the year did not start in the big race, so that Ormondale, until he has proved the master of these sterling youngsters, cannot be crowned king.

THE OTHER BACES.

The defeat of Dave Johnson's crack sprinter and weight carrier Roseben in the Fall Handicap, for three-year-olds and upward, at six furlongs on the main track, was probably the biggest disappointment of the day. Roseben picked up 129 pounds and as he had won other races against the same kind of horses with heavier imposts it was believed that he had the race at his mercy. Opening at 7 to 5, he was pounded down to 9 to 10 favorite, his owner going up and down the line placing a $10,000
